Event 3 – Pedestrian Stop – ARCON

Session 21 – High Risk Pedestrian Stop, Handcuffing, and Incident to Arrest Search Exercise Test
LD 33 – Arrest and Control

Exercise Test – High Risk Pedestrian Stop, Handcuffing, and Incident to Arrest Search

Purpose: This activity will evaluate the students' ability to demonstrate proper high risk pedestrian stop and handcuffing technique, and knowledge of incident to arrest search.

Description: The instructor will first notify the class that this is an evaluated activity and ask if there are any final questions before the test begins. The students will then wait outside in pairs to be called in by an instructor. Each available instructor (use as many as are available) will call in a pair of students and test them individually, with one student acting as the suspect, and the other as the officer being evaluated. The student will set up for a high risk pedestrian stop. The instructor will order the student to demonstrate a high risk pedestrian stop, including the handcuffing and standing of the suspect. The instructor will then ask the student to explain the difference between a pat down search and an incident to arrest search.

The instructor should use the appropriate high risk pedestrian stop, handcuffing, and incident to arrest search grading sheets to evaluate the student. After evaluation, the students will switch roles and the new officer will be evaluated in the same manner.
