

Ann Young was appointed to the rank of captain in April 2000, making her the first African-American female to achieve this rank.

Ann Young

As a result of the Rampart Scandal and the ensuing Board of Inquiry Investigation, the Department entered into a Consent Decree with the Department of Justice on June 15, 2001, for a period no less than 5 years. The terms of the Consent Decree required full compliance with approximately 129 action items.

Randy Quan

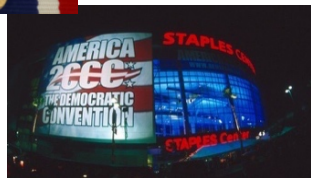

On January 24, 2002, Randy Quan became the first Chinese-American to attain the rank of Captain.

The first female to attain the rank of Deputy Chief was Margaret Ann York, known to many as Peggy, appointed in June 2000.

Peggy York

The City hosted the 2000 Democratic National Convention from August 14 - August 17, 2000, at The Staples Center. The event drew approximately 35,000 delegates, journalists, protesters and a wide variety of dignitaries.

The Metro Communication Center was complete June 2001.

Metro Communication Center

Ribbon cutting at Los Angeles Police Museum

A ribbon cutting ceremony for the new Los Angeles Police Museum located in the former Highland Park Police Station was held on June 28, 2001.

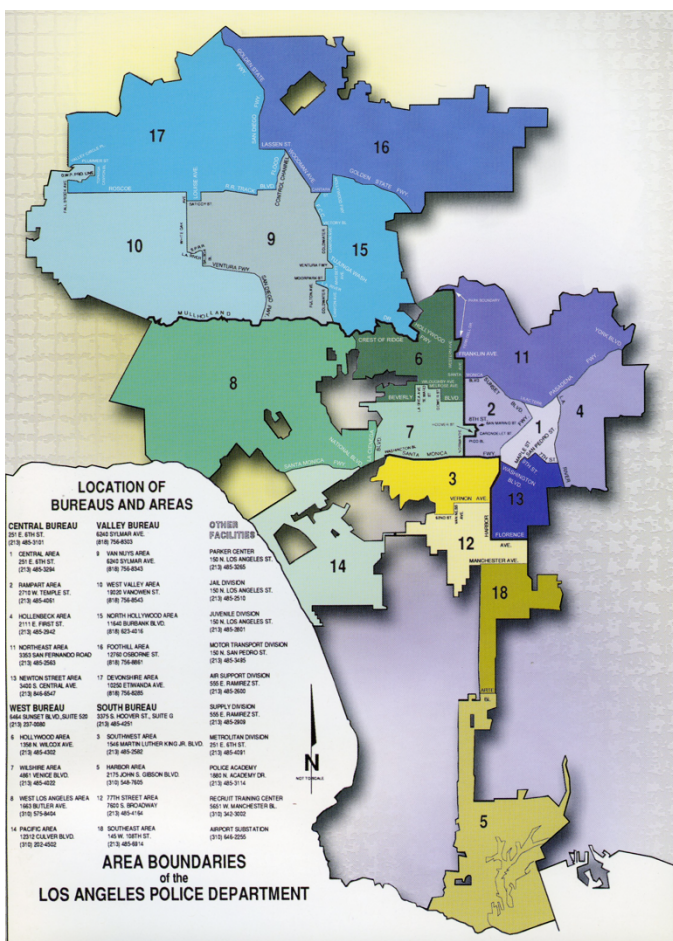

When the LAPD Cold Case Homicide Unit of Robbery Homicide Division was created in 2001, the detectives were handed over 9,000 unsolved murders that spanned over two decades. The Unit solved their first "cold" murder investigation in 2002.

Paul Kim

On January 24, 2002, Paul Kim became the first Asian-American Commander in the Department's history.

2000

LAPD Map from 2000

Following the tragic events of September 11, 2001, the LAPD showed its support for the fallen heroes of the NYPD and New York/New Jersey Port Authority Police Department with several events and fundraisers to assist their families.

In response to the new emerging role of law enforcement after 9/11, a new toll free 24 hour phone number, 1-877 A THREAT and e-mail address 877-ATHREAT@lapd.lacity.org was established in 2002, to enable the general public to provide tips and information regarding potential terrorist activity.

SUSPICIOUS ACTIVITY REPORTING (iWATCH):

1-877-A-THREAT (1-877-284-7328)

ONLINE: www.iwatchla.org

The LAPD hosted its first community COMPSTAT meeting on April 3, 2003. COMPSTAT, an acronym for "Computer Statistics," is a computer-based technology that gives the Department's management team the ability to identify, track and define issues pertaining to crime and quality of life in "real" time.