During the "No Kings 2.0" protest, a crowd of approximately 250-300 had assembled on Alameda St and Aliso St (Commercial St). The crowd flashed bright lights and strobe lights at officers in an attempt to compromise their vision. Numerous people in the crowd were armed with metal poles. One battery on a police officer incident occurred on the skirmish line, and others attempted to engage in fights with officers. Unlawful assembly was declared and dispersal orders were given. Agitators in the crowd threw firecrackers, projectiles, and other objects towards the officers in addition to shooting LASER beams and flashing lights. Less-lethal weapon systems were used.
